TOURIST INFORMATION

Calabria offers a glimpse of a very different Italy, as well as memories of more illustrious times over two thousand years ago. Calabria was part of Magna Graecia, the site of rich and powerful Greek colonies, recorded by artefacts.

The area is mountainous and full of remote villages, and the smaller towns and villages and rural areas have a lot of historic charm.

It's the seaside that attracts most of Calabria's summer visitors nowadays: the region has 780 km of coast, facing onto two seas, the Tyrrhenian and the Ionian.

For “forestry maniacs” we underline that not far from National Park of Sila we have the Regional Park of “Serre” with a very particular (and spectacular) station of silver fir (Abies Alba), the most southern station in Europe.
